As before suggested, the rights of the squine may sometimes be in doubt. But what of the rights of citizens whose dooryards are invaded and turned into a glaughter-pen by policemen clothed at exact moment with a dubious shadow of authority? There is no evidence to show that Daisy was of an ordinarily savage turn of mind, the farmer's implement or the man about town. or that she ventured at any time on an attack beyond the limits of her own dooryard. Had she really committed a capital offense in mangling a piece of blue cloth her dire suspicion?

THE OPEN TUNNEL MEETING.

* The State Board of Railroad Commission ers has every reason to be gratified that it held yesterday's open meeting for the discussion of tunnel light and ventilation. While there were, as was to have been expected, some suggestions of impractical methods and apmaratus, there were other suggestions full of thought and of practical soundness, New lines of investigation were suggested shead, and the proposed work was shown to be bending of much broader theories may b directed than had been deemed possible.

Besides, the Commissioners can but have been impressed by the manifestation of general interest which led people not connected with any concern that might be benefited by possible contracts to com forward with ideas sprung from observation and experience.

It was not expected that this single meeting would furnish solutions of the problems confronting the Commissioners. It was believed, and the outcome shows that the bellef was more than well founded, that it would bring out hints of real help to the Commissioners in their preliminary studies and experiments.

THE DYNAMITE CASE VERDICT.

The verdict of the Coroner's jury in the ense of the recent dynamite disaster near Tarrytown includes a paragraph consuring "the President and Board of Directors of the New York Central and Hudson River a pretty Railroad for allowing their employees to transport dynamite and exploders in open cars or together in the same car, whether open or closed, or for allowing any person
